Cash flow weakens at high prices, VN-Index has 4 consecutive sessions of decline

VN-Index decreased 0.6% after 2 weeks of increase with liquidity decreasing 12% compared to last week. Stock market US stocks adjusted, foreign investors returned to net selling and cash flow weakened, making the uptrend unable to be maintained.

- After being excited by the positive assessment information of FTSE last week, large stocks weakened, leading to weak and prolonged cash flow in small and medium-sized stocks.

- Foreign investors net sold 46 million USD compared to net selling of 7 million USD last week.

At the regular Government meeting in December 2024, the Prime Minister requested to strive for GDP growth of over 7% in 2014 and 8% in 2025 to create momentum for the 2026-2030 period of double-digit growth.

Government The government focuses on streamlining the apparatus towards reducing at least 15% of internal connections, implementing policies to "untie" production activities, with the highest priority being to promote growth, improve labor productivity and enhance national status. TECHNICAL ANALYSIS: Weakening before 1,280 points, VN-Index retreats closer to the convergence zone of SMA 100 and 200

Daily chart: After the doji candlestick increasing at the beginning of the week, VN-Index had 4 consecutive doji candles decreasing near 1,258 - 1,260 converging with SMA100 and SMA200. Including last week, VN-Index had 6 consecutive doji candles showing a weakening trend as the index approached high price zones. Bollinger bands are slightly pointing up, technical indicators are at neutral levels and there are no signs of short-term reversal divergence.

Some notable features of the daily chart:

- RSI decreased from 62 to 55 points.
- MACD crossed above the signal line and level 0. Liquidity decreased by 12% compared to last week's trading.
- VN-Index crossed SMA 20, SMA 50, 100 and 200.

Conclusion: The weakening trend along with decreasing liquidity shows that investors are not ready to participate in high price zones. The index may retreat to lower price zones to form a new equilibrium zone in the short term. The support levels of VN-Index to watch next week are 1,258 - 1,260 points converging with medium and long-term averages and 1,240 points (Fibonacci 23.8% of the medium-term cycle). VN-Index is likely to bounce or create temporary equilibrium at these support levels next week.
