GLOBAL STOCK MARKETS

U.S. Stock Market Recovers with "Santa Claus Rally" Effect

After a 10-session losing streak, the Dow Jones rose for 5 consecutive sessions. The "Santa Claus rally" effect, which occurs during the last 5 trading days of the year and the first 2 trading days of the new year, with an average increase of 1.3% in the S&P 500 since 1950, is repeating this year. The DXY index and the 10-year U.S. government bond yield continue to show strong growth.

- U.S. stock indices increased an average 1.5%, EU600 +0.5%, Nikkei 225 +3.8%, CSI 300 +1.4%.
- The commodity index rose 0.5%, metal and precious metal by 0.2%-2%, Urea +4.7%, while natural gas -8%, rubber -3.6%, and cocoa -8.4%.
- The DXY index +0.4%, with the 10-year U.S. government bond yield +0.09%.

The global economy enters 2024 with central banks cutting interest rates. Stock markets in the U.S. and Europe reached record highs, creating a boom for the ultra-rich with 141 new billionaires. However, Europe is lagging behind the U.S. due to political deadlocks in two major economies, Germany and France, as well as a lack of investment and skills in the region. China is under increasing pressure to shift its growth model. The policies of the newly elected U.S. president are causing the USD to strengthen, slowing the pace of interest rate cuts, raising the risk of inflation, and potentially leading to trade wars in 2025. Furthermore, conflicts around the globe are putting the global economy at uncertain crossroads. According to the latest IMF report: "Prepare for a period of instability."

PMI data for Canada, the UK, Japan, China, the EU, and the U.S., along with Vietnam, existing home sales, initial jobless claims, U.S. crude oil reserves, and Vietnam's PMI, are noteworthy information for the upcoming week.

VIETNAM STOCK MARKET

The index surged, supported by the banking sector

The VN-Index rose 1.4% with liquidity up 21%, aligning with global markets during the holiday week. Foreign investors returned to net selling, banking stocks helped the market quickly recover to previous week's peak.

- Banking stocks contributed 14.2 points, accounting for 80% of the week's gains, driving the market's rise as capital rotated swiftly across sectors.
- Strong market breadth: 17/18 sectors gained. Media, tourism, and construction rose over 3%, while oil & gas declined by 2%.
- Foreign investors net bought USD 21 million, reversing USD 50 million net sell from last week.

The ADB raised 2025 growth forecast to 6.6% (from 6.2%) due to strong exports, robust FDI, and favorable global trends. Challenges from international conflicts are seen as modest, while reforms in public investment, bidding, electricity, and public-private partnerships create new growth drivers. The VN-Index remains in a sideways-up phase, with opportunities to reduce holdings at short-term peaks or engage in low-margin trading until new trend emerges.

WEEKLY TOPIC: Forecast of Changes in VN30 and VNFIN Lead Index Components for Q1/2025

On January 20, 2025, HOSE will announce the component stock portfolios for two significant indices, VN30 and VNFIN Lead. January 31, 2025, is expected to be the completion date for the restructuring of all ETF portfolios that track these indices. Based on the HOSE-Index Construction and Management Rules version 3.1 and data as of December 27, 2024, BSC provides the following forecasts for the VN30 and VNFIN Lead indices:

1. VN30

- LPB is likely to be added as it satisfies the index's criteria.
- POW is likely to be removed as it fails to meet the market capitalization ranking requirements.

2. VNFIN Lead

- No changes are expected in this review period.

Note: The data used by BSC for forecasting may contain discrepancies due to the data application date, free-float ratios, and investment weightings.

Additional Notes:

Regarding BSR's market transfer (as detailed in BSC's Week 41 report): BSR is expected to list and officially begin trading on HOSE on January 17, 2025. According to the current criteria, BSR will need at least six months to be considered for inclusion in the VN30 basket (as its market capitalization is unlikely to rank in the Top 5 on HOSE to qualify for the three-month consideration period) -> Thus, the next opportunity for BSR to enter the VN30 basket will likely be in the review period using data up to December 31, 2025 (Q1/2026 review period). In a positive scenario, BSR may rank among the Top 20 stocks with the highest market capitalization on HOSE.

TECHNICAL ANALYSIS: Returning to the short-term peak supported by Banking stocks

Daily Chart Analysis: After a period of fluctuation with doji candles around the SMA100 and SMA200, the VN-Index experienced a breakout session, returning to test the short-term peak. The index then continued to consolidate at the previous peak with a spinning top candle and a doji candle at the end of the week. The Bollinger Bands are now moving sideways, and technical indicators at neutral levels suggest that the index remains in a short-term consolidation phase.

Key Features of the Daily Chart:

- RSI: Increased from 55 to 60 points, signaling improving momentum.
- MACD: Crossed above the signal line and the zero level, indicating a bullish trend.
- Liquidity: Trading volume rose by 21% compared to the previous week, showing increased market activity.
- Moving Averages: The VN-Index remains above the SMA20 but below the SMA50, SMA100, and SMA200, suggesting mixed signals

Conclusion: The weakening consolidation phase, combined with slightly increased liquidity, indicates the risk of forming a double-top pattern or retracing to the lower range of 1,260 points for accumulation if the banking sector loses momentum in the coming week. On a positive note, the short-term SMAs have crossed the medium and long-term SMAs from below, and there is strong support at 1,258–1,260 points, where multiple moving averages converge. The VN-Index is likely to move within a stable price range of 1,260–1,280 points in the coming week, awaiting supportive information to establish a clearer trend.
