

STOCK MARKET

The VN-Index opened with a decline but found solid dip-buying support around the 1,300 level, pushing the index to close at 1,332.51 points — gaining over 18 points from the previous session. Market breadth tilted positive, with 17 out of 18 sectors advancing, led by the Chemicals sector, followed by Real Estate. Regarding foreign investor activity, net selling was recorded on both the HSX and HNX exchanges. In the coming sessions, the VN-Index is expected to seek equilibrium within the 1,315–1,330 range. The 1,330–1,340 area remains a strong resistance zone, and investors should exercise caution amid potential profit-taking pressure at these levels.
