Market outlook

The market movement in the narrow spread with turnover dropped sharply in the last trading session of the week showed the hesitation of investors in the market as the index has recovered for 6 consecutive sessions. Cash flow today continued to focus on the major financial codes have influenced the index such as VCB, VPB, TCB and DXG. It is likely that this group will continue to lead the market next week. BSC recommends investors keep their stock exposure and reduce the proportion of stocks that have not recovered well in the last couple sessions.

HSG_Testing the Resistance

Comment: After peaking at 29, HSG decreased strongly, continuously losing important Exhibit 2 support levels, penetrating the SMA200, and bottoming at 9.3, equivalent to 68% fall . At HNX-Index Intraday the moment, after falling to the bottom, HSG has rebounded strongly and is testing the resistance of 13, where there was a relatively high trading volume. The MACD is rising and diverging above the signal line, combining the uptrend of the RSI indicator confirming the upward momentum of the stock. However, liquidity was still at medium level and 119.50 decreased today, although HSG increased by 6.7%. HSG is expected to test this resistance in the coming sessions.

Derivatives market

Volatility fluctuations dragged prices of the futures contract sharply. The recovery in the ATC session helped the futures contract rise against the downtrend of VN30. The gap between the derivaties and the VN30 narrowed to -0.8%, -0.3%, 0.7% and 2.8% respectively. Liquidity decreased by 21% to VND6,820 billion. Total bid volume was 1.03 times of the total sell orders; On average, a buy and sell order was equal to 2.9 contracts. VN30 creates spinning candle after doji candle with low liquidity. The market's strong divergence, together with the return of bullion stocks at the first rally showed the index is regaining momentum to the next resistance at 1,067 points in the V-shaped pattern. a difference of 8 points, together with the trend of recovery brings the advantage of holding the status of buy in next week
