Market outlook

Stock market: The uptrend continued in today's session, helping the market return to the resistance level of 1180 points. Cash flow was flowing into the market when there were 17/19 gaining points. A slightly increased liquidity and positive market breadth are reflecting positive trading activity in the market. Although foreign investors remained net sellers on both HSX and HNX, their net selling value is declining. If the trend of net selling continues to decline and market liquidity remains stable, the VN-Index may retest the 1180-1200 range in the near future.

Future contracts: All future contracts increased following VN30. Investors might consider selling for short-term contracts.

Covered warrants: In the trading session on March 11, 2021, majority of coverred warrants increased following underlying securities. Trading value increased.
